About the job

Quantum Machines is the global leader in control systems for quantum computing. This field is on the verge of exponential growth, bringing about opportunities like those made possible with the invention of classical computing 50 years ago.

We are assembling the strongest team of professionals in the world with the goal of revolutionizing how quantum computers are built and controlled and accelerating their arrival.

Quantum Machines is backed by top-tier investors such as Battery Ventures, TLV Partners, Red Dot Capital, and Avigdor Willenz's investment group.

We are seeking a Head of Product that will be a member of an ambitious and rapidly growing global organization leading QM's Product organization. As Head of Product, you will lead the planning, implementing, managing, and running of all the company's product strategy/work plans/initiatives globally. You will report to the CTO & lead a global product team.

Responsibilities:
● Determining market and product requirements, and managing the vision, execution, and business impact of the QM Platform by working with leaders across the company
● Build, manage and coach a team of high-performing product managers who owns the companies product roadmap end-to-end
● Integrating and aligning the product strategy and roadmap with QM's corporate strategy and measuring them against it
● Analyzing market trends and changing customer behavior to identify future directions
● Interacting with the company's customers to increase product adoption and customer satisfaction
● Maintaining an updated view of the competitive landscape, as well as the relevant technology trends and developments
● Advancing the integration of the products within the company's solution offering
● Covering both outbound and inbound aspects of the PM work

Requirements:
● At least 7 years of experience in leading product teams, above 15 years of professional experience in the product in general
● Experience leading complex integrated hardware & software products. Advantages for data center and/or RF systems & solutions
● Experience working in a Startup in growth mode – advantage
● Technological work experience in R&D roles
● Exemplary leadership & communication skills
● Strategic mindset, with the ability to make difficult decisions & execute
● An analytical data-driven approach to problem-solving
